He developed a love for arts and music at an early age. He graduated from Central Michigan University with a degree in Fine Arts. He performed in various plays in local theatres and truly loved it. He also sang in and directed several of the church and community choirs. He was fiercely competitive. Although he did not know a basketball from a football, he considered himself the king of dominoes, bingo and pretty much any other board game. He enjoyed playing tennis and bowling as well. He was a great cook. He loved to host dinner parties and feed his family and friends. He had a great sense of décor and style and always prided himself on looking and smelling good. He had a wonderful personality and enjoyed putting a smile on other's faces. He was always willing to offer kind words and a shoulder for anyone to lean on whenever they needed it. He was hilariously funny and there was never a dull moment around him.
